The Seasons (Fall) of America

"The Harvest is passed, the summer is ended, and we are not saved" (Jeremiah 8:20).

Fifty-six men affixed their names to a document that inaugurated the birth of a new land. This was the spring of our existence as a nation. Then we moved into adulthood in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. We fought a great Civil War. We defended liberty in two World Wars. This was the summer of America's existence. Now we are in the Fall season.

Brilliant hues are blushing, their colors are all around us speaking something that we need to hear. The trees are blooming forth in a great sense of brilliance. If we did not know better we would think that the resplendent colors around us are making all and everything better, getting bolder and brighter. But we know the end is approaching, winter is around the corner.

America is like a reckless playboy having its last fling, determined to go out in a blaze of glory before a winter of death sets in. America is in the fall of its existence, both figuratively and literally. A new election, a new congress, or even a new president cannot change this sad reality. We are having to endure our vices and we are not willing to face the remedy to cure them.

This is America at the dawn of a Bold New World. We are a nation in crisis. We can surrender to the currents of change or we can discern our times and set out courageously to reestablish a biblical way of life that will first redeem our families and then our nation. It's our choice. And it is only one choice. We will either repent from our disallowance of Christ or revel in the ruin of our families.

The flag of our culture is slowly descending under the bombardment of cultural immorality and social insanity. The casualties are paraded before us in our newspapers, digital smart phones, iPads, computers, and nightly news.

We have a flag to raise with the new rope of our faith in Christ. Let's get out of the bunkers and run to the pole of timeless truths found in the Treasure of God's Word, and pray, and raise the flag of trust by relying totally upon Christ and He alone. Oh, God move in us as your people.
